Argentinian Adventure!

By Lucy

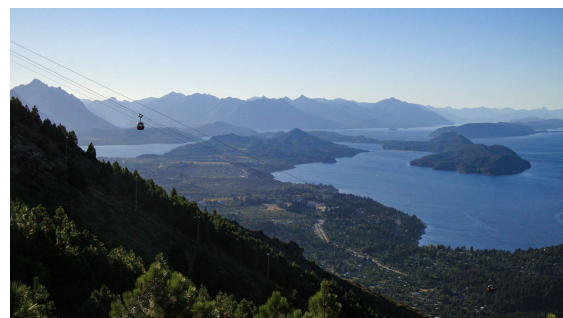

On Tuesday 27 January, Alejandro Brain and Natalia Zarate, accompanied by their children, set off on a journey from Colin's End, Reading, all the way to Bariloche to visit family.

At one o'clock in the afternoon, they went to Reading Train Station. There they waited for their train to London. Once it arrived, they got on and waited for them to arrive. After a long train ride, they had to get on yet another train to the airport. After getting off and going through an extremely short flight of stairs, they went to where the luggage was transported to the plane. The line was extremely long. They were going on a flight to Madrid in Spain. Later, they went through security, and got on their next plane, a sixteen-hour flight to Buenos Aires. For breakfast, they ate a traditional Spanish egg filet. When they arrived, they had to wait yet again for their next plane to arrive. After their last flight, they were now in Argentina, Bariloche, but they still had a two-hour car drive to get to Natalia's parents' house.

By the time that they arrived, it was already midnight. In the morning, one of the kids' cousins, Alex.Z, came to stay the night. The children, Valentin and Lucy Brain, shared sweets with family who wanted to try. We asked fourteen-year-old Alex.Z what he thought about the taste of the sweets, "the 'toxic wastes' were the best sweets I ever had."

A few days later, Nati stayed with her parents, while Lucy, Valentin and Alex.B went to Bolson to spend time with Alex.B's family. The first place they went to was El Rio Azul. They ate pineapple and chocolinas. When they went to the village in bolson, They had plenty of fun, playing basketball, and going for walks. one day, Nati went to Chile to visit her sister. Meanwhile, the others went on a long walk up a steep mountain. But the effort was worth it, as there was a cool river on the other side, El Rio Blanco. We asked Alex.B, (forty-seven years old) how he felt after going up the mountain, "Absolutely exhausted, but happy."

When Nati came back, they celebrated Cori's twenty first birthday (another of their cousins). To celebrate, they went to a pub, had a BBQ the next day, then ate cake. Soon, they went back to Bariloche. A while later, it was time to go. On the way back to England, they had to go on a twenty-hour bus ride to Buenos Aires, bought some sweets from Argentina, (palitos de la selva) then went to Nati's uncle and aunt's house to eat lunch, then played Uno Flip. But of course, they had to leave eventually. So, they went off to the airport and got onto their next flight. When they arrived back in Spain, their final flight to England got cancelled, and they had to wait twelve hours for the earliest available flight. So, they went to a hotel and ate a dinner that was kindly provided by the hotel. The dinner was two sandwiches, a yoghurt, flavoured coconut, an apple, a packet of mild cheese and onion crisps and some fresh water. Once they finished dinner, they got as much rest as they possibly could, then went to get a breakfast bag that carried biscuits, peach juice, chocolate milk, and saladix, pizza flavour. Once back at the airport, they ate biscuits and peach juice. Soon, they were on their next plane and had set off into the air once again. Once they arrived, they drank chocolate milk, and crisps, then got on a train back to Reading, and that's when they ate the saladix. When they arrived in Reading, they got a taxi drive home. When they went inside, the room was extremely cold.
